IX. DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926, a Distinguished Flying Cross for extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flight is awarded by the Department of the Army to:

Major James E. Hooker, Infantry, United States Army. 20 to 23 August 1964. (This award supersedes award of the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious achievement from 20 August to 23 August 1964, as announced in General Orders Number 141, Headquarters, 11th Air Assault Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, dated 27 October 1964.)

Lieutenant Colonel Richard J. Kennedy, Jr., , Transportation Corps, United States Army. 14 December 1964.

Major Billy L. Odneal, , Transportation Corps, United States Army. 23 November 1964.

Captain Donald P. Wray, , Transportation Corps, United States Army. 16 November 1964 and 20 November 1964.

X--SOLDIER'S MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926, a Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy is awarded to:

Private Kenneth Ball, , United States Army, as a member of Company A, 7th Battalion, 2d Training Brigade, United States Army Training Center, Armor, Fort Knox, Kentucky, distinguished himself by heroism on 1 November 1964, in Louisville, Kentucky. Private Ball unhesitatingly participated in a hazardous rescue mission when he and two military companions observed an apartment house on fire. With complete disregard for his own safety, he repeatedly entered the blazing structure, ran from floor to floor through dense smoke, and succeeded in evacuating trapped persons from the burning apartment before the fire department arrived on the scene. He and his fellow soldiers evacuated a woman who was completely disabled, an elderly gentleman unable to walk, and another man who was unable to reach safety without assistance. By his prompt action and courageous efforts, he participated in an evacuation mission that prevented the possible loss of life. Private Ball's heroic conduct is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Private First Class Donnie G. Blankenship, , United States Army, as a member of Battery A, 1st Battalion, 9th Artillery, 3d Infantry Division, distinguished himself by heroism on 14 July 1964, near Kitzingen, Germany. Private Blankenship was sitting on the bank of the Main River when he noticed a large group of bystanders observing a man struggling in the water approximately 30 meters from the shore. With full knowledge of his own limitations as a swimmer and with complete disregard for his own safety, Private Blankenship unhesitatingly plunged into the river to aid the stricken man. Ignoring the dangerous conditions of the river in which locks opened causing a flood stage, he swam to the area where the victim had submerged, dove to the bottom of the river, and succeeded in locating him. After towing the victim to the safety of the shore, he continued his unselfish efforts by administering artificial respiration which revived the unconscious man. Private Blankenship's heroic conduct, prompt actions, and deep concern for his fellow man are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service. (This award supersedes the award of the Army Commendation Medal to Private Blankenship for heroism on 14 July 1964 as announced in General Orders Number 176, Headquarters 3d Infantry Division, APO 36, US Forces, dated 29 October 1964).

Major Wilma F. Bolling, , Women's Army Corps, United States Army, as a member of the Intelligence Division, Headquarters, United States Army, Europe, distinguished herself by heroism on 17 January 1965, at the Officers and Civilians Open Mess, Heidelberg, Germany. Major Bolling was eating her breakfast in the club when one of the heating elements on a table in the serving line exploded and engulfed an officer and his daughter in flames. With complete disregard for her own safety, Major Bolling rushed toward the burning child, pushed her to the floor, and attempted to smother the flames with her own body. Although Major Bolling sustained burns from the alcohol fed fire, she ignored her own injuries and continued to use her own body to smother the flames on the little girl until the fire was completely extinguished. Major Bolling's heroic conduct and voluntary actions in saving the life of the child while endangering her own are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon herself and the military service.

Staff Sergeant Jack J. Cicolello, , United States Army, as a member of Company C, Supply and Maintenance Agency, United States Army Communications Zone, Europe, distinguished himself by heroism in the vicinity of Verdun, France, on 18 December 1964. Sergeant Cicolello and two other Army soldiers were on the scene when a fire broke out in a trailer which was the home of a military family. Upon learning that a 15-month-old child was inside the blazing trailer, Sergeant Cicolello and his fellow soldiers broke down a locked door to rescue the baby. With complete disregard for his own safety, he entered the flaming structure and participated in evacuating the child to a place of safety. Then noticing that the little girl was suffering from smoke inhalation, he administered first aid to restore her breathing to normal. After the child was taken to a hospital, he remained on the scene to assist in fighting fire despite the danger of exploding fuel storage containers. Sergeant Cicolello's prompt actions, sound judgment, and heroic conduct in this emergency are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Captain Robert C. Dahn, , Infantry, United States Army, as a member of the 516th Transport Airplane Company, 11th Air Assault Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, distinguished himself by heroism on 24 June 1964, near Ridgeway, South Carolina. When Captain Dahn saw an Army aircraft crash during a night field exercise, he immediately proceeded to the scene of the accident to participate in the rescue effort. Upon arrival at the crash site, he quickly and efficiently organized a rescue operation to evacuate the victims from the flaming wreckage. With complete disregard for his own safety and ignoring the intense heat from the fuel fed blaze and explosion, he unhesitatingly began to evacuate the injured personnel from the burning aircraft. Then, despite the imminent danger of more explosions, Captain Dahn rushed to the aid of an individual who was pinned beneath one of the engines and, with the assistance of other personnel on the scene, succeeded in lifting the engine and removing the injured man. Throughout the hazardous rescue operations, he continued his courageous efforts until all of the casualties were removed from the blazing wreckage and the fire was under control. Captain Dahn's heroic conduct, perseverance, and deep concern for his fellow soldier are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service. (This award supersedes the award of the Army Commendation Medal to Captain Dahn for heroism 24 June 1964 as announced in General Orders Number 73, Headquarters 11th Air Assault Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, dated 21 July 1964.)

Sergeant First Class William A. Dunstan, , United States Army, as a member of the 516th Transport Airplane Company, 11th Air Assault Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, distinguished himself by heroism on 24 June 1964, near Ridgeway, South Carolina. When Sergeant Dunstan saw an Army aircraft crash during a night field exercise, he immediately proceeded to the scene of the accident to participate in the rescue effort. Upon arrival at the crash site, he displayed complete disregard for his own safety, ignored the intense heat from the fuel fed blaze, and unhesitatingly began to evacuate the injured personnel from the burning aircraft. Although he was knocked to the ground by the force of a flash explosion while fighting the fire to prevent the flames from reaching an individual trapped in the wreckage, Sergeant Dunstan was undaunted by the momentary set back and continued to lead the firefighting efforts until the injured person was evacuated. Throughout the hazardous rescue operation, he continued his courageous efforts until all of the casualties were removed from the blazing wreckage and the fire was under control. Sergeant Dunstan's heroic conduct, determination, and deep concern for his fellow man are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service. (This award supersedes the award of the Army Commendation Medal to Sergeant Dunstan for heroism 24 June 1964 as announced in General Orders Number 73, Headquarters 11th Air Assault Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, dated 21 July 1964.)

Major Stewart M. Evans, , Signal Corps, United States Army, as a member of the United States Army Element, Allied Land Forces Southeastern Europe, distinguished himself by heroism in Izmir, Turkey, on 25 November 1964. As a member of a Scuba Club, Major Evans unhesitatingly volunteered to participate in an effort to locate an Army Sergeant and two Turkish nationals who were in a taxicab that had skidded off a pier and plunged into the extremely deep waters of Izmir Bay. Major Evans displayed complete disregard for his own safety in his efforts to locate the missing men by diving into the murky, turbulent waters of the Bay which was littered with debris. After the two Turkish nationals were found, he continued his efforts to recover the body of the missing soldier from the Bay despite the hazardous circumstances. Major Evans' heroic conduct and humanitarian efforts are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Sergeant First Class William F. Gibson, (then Staff Sergeant), United States Army, as a member of the Tactics Committee, United States Army Training Center, Fort Polk, distinguished himself by heroism on 15 May 1963, at Grenade Range Number 22, Fort Polk, Louisiana. As a Committee Instructor, Sergeant Gibson was observing instruction in grenade throwing when he noticed that a trainee accidentally dropped a live grenade as he was preparing to throw it. With complete disregard for his own safety and full knowledge of the extreme danger, Sergeant Gibson raced to the live grenade, scooped it up, and hurled it toward the impact area where it went off in an air burst harming no one. His prompt and brave actions prevented injury or possible loss of life to personnel on the scene. Sergeant Gibson's heroic conduct in this hazardous situation is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service. (This award supersedes the award of the Army Commendation Medal to Sergeant Gibson for heroism on 15 May 1963 as announced in General Orders Number 258, Headquarters Fort Polk, Fort Polk, Louisiana, dated 12 October 1964, as amended by General Orders Number 263, Headquarters Fort Polk, Fort Polk, Louisiana, dated 20 October 1964.)

Specialist Six George F. Goodwin, , United States Army, as a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2d Battalion, 13th Infantry, distinguished himself by heroism on 27 July 1964, near Michelstadt, Germany. When informed that urgent assistance was needed at the scene of an accident in which an Army truck, carrying 16 tons of 155mm ammunition, had turned over, started to burn, and pinned the driver beneath the wreckage, Specialist Goodwin unhesitatingly volunteered to participate in the rescue effort. As he and the rescue party arrived in a vehicle (Tracked Recovery) at the accident site in a wooded area, the exploding 155mm shells had started a number of brush fires and one serious fire threatened 40,000 acres of prime coniferous forest. With complete disregard for his own safety and ignoring the exploding shells and fire, he rode to the area of the wreckage where exploding shells prevented the evacuation of the truck driver. When the hazardous situation required that the rescue vehicle be moved to a safe location, he dismounted and crawled through brush fires to reach the truck. Two minutes after the medics determined that the driver was no longer alive and the rescue party had moved to a safe area, a tremendous explosion occurred hurling blazing fragments into the air and starting new fires. Throughout the dangerous rescue mission, he demonstrated fortitude, perseverance, and deep concern for the life of a fellow soldier. Specialist Goodwin's heroic conduct is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Sergeant First Class William F. Inskeep, , United States Army, as Station Commander of the United States Army Recruiting Station, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio distinguished himself by heroism on 11 September 1964. Sergeant Inskeep was standing in front of this Recruiting Station when he saw a small child fall from an automobile as the driver turned into a busy thoroughfare. With complete disregard for his own safety Sergeant Inskeep rushed to the aid of the child lying in the path of heavy traffic. Realizing that another vehicle was rounding the corner too fast for him to move the small boy to safety, he used his body as a shield for the child, frantically signaled the driver, and succeeded in getting the driver's attention in time for him to swerve and miss hitting them by inches. Sergeant Inskeep's heroic conduct and prompt action in this hazardous situation are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Specialist Five Leslie E. Johnson, , United States Army, as a member of United States Army Element, Allied Land Forces Southern Europe, distinguished himself by heroism in Izmir, Turkey, on 22 November and 25 November 1964. As a member of a Scuba Club, Specialist Johnson unhesitatingly volunteered to participate in a rescue effort to save the lives of an Army Sergeant and two Turkish nationals who were in a taxicab that had skidded off a pier and plunged into the extremely deep waters of Izmir Bay. With hope that the victims had survived in an air pocket of the taxicab, Specialist Johnson displayed complete disregard for his own safety in his efforts to locate the missing men by repeatedly diving into the murky, turbulent waters of the Bay which was littered with debris and covered with a film of gasoline. Despite the rain storm and the darkness of night, he continued his brave efforts until the vehicle was found at a depth of 55 feet without its occupants. After the Turkish nationals were found, he again participated in a daylight effort to recover the body of the missing soldier. Specialist Johnson's heroic conduct, determination, and humanitarian efforts are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Private Edward L. MacDonald, , United States Army, as a member of Company A, 7th Battalion, 2d Training Brigade, United States Army Training Center, Armor, Fort Knox, Kentucky, distinguished himself by heroism on 1 November 1964, in Louisville, Kentucky. Private MacDonald unhesitatingly participated in a hazardous rescue mission when he and two military companions observed an apartment house on fire. With complete disregard for his own safety, he repeatedly entered the blazing structure, ran from floor to floor through dense smoke, and succeeded in evacuating trapped persons from the burning apartment before the fire department arrived on the scene. He and his fellow soldiers evacuated a woman who was completely disabled, an elderly gentleman unable to walk, and another man who was unable to reach safety without assistance. By his prompt action and courageous efforts, he participated in an evacuation mission that prevented the possible loss of life. Private MacDonald's heroic conduct is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Sergeant First Class Jack P. McIntosh, , (then Staff Sergeant), United States Army, as a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Troop, 2d Reconnaissance Squadron, 14th Armored Cavalry, distinguished himself by heroism on 19 July 1964 near Nickersfelden, Germany. Sergeant McIntosh was camping along the bank of a river when he heard calls for help from a youth who was floundering in the swift current after his canoe capsized. With complete disregard for his own safety, Sergeant McIntosh, fully clothed, plunged into the river amidst jutting boulders and succeeded in reaching the burly 16-year-old youth. After a furious struggle with the young man, he managed to tow him to the safety of the shore and then administered first aid to the victim to restore normal breathing. Sergeant McIntosh's heroic conduct in this dangerous situation is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service. (This award supersedes the award of the Army Commendation Medal to Sergeant McIntosh for heroism on 19 July 1964 as announced in General Orders Number 149, Headquarters V Corps, APO 79, U.S. Forces, dated 6 October 1964).

First Lieutenant Bobby J. Murdock, , Infantry, United States Army, as a member of Headquarters and Service Company, 4th Training Brigade, United States Army Training Center, Armor, distinguished himself by heroism on 11 May 1964, at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Lieutenant Murdock was serving as a Safety Officer on a hand grenade range when a trainee, who was preparing to throw a live grenade, accidentally dropped the armed grenade inside the throwing bunker. With complete disregard for his own safety, Lieutenant Murdock dove toward the grenade, snatched it from the ground, and hurled it into the impact area. Continuing his courageous actions in almost simultaneous motion, he lunged toward the trainee and succeeded in pulling him back into the safety of the throwing bunker moments before the grenade detonated. Through his bravery and spontaneous reaction to a hazardous situation, he averted injury and possible loss of life to personnel in the area. Lieutenant Murdock's prompt and heroic action is in the highest traditions of the military service and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Specialist Four John Pappageorge, , Transportation Corps (then Private First Class), United States Army, as a member of 516th Transportation Company (Airplane), Fort Benning, Georgia, distinguished himself by heroism on 24 June 1964, near Ridgeway, South Carolina. When Specialist Pappageorge saw an Army aircraft crash during a night field exercise, he immediately proceeded to the scene of the accident to participate in the rescue effort. Upon arrival at the crash site, he displayed complete disregard for his own safety, ignored the intense heat from the fuel fed blaze, and unhesitatingly joined a fire fighting party to aid in the evacuation of the injured personnel from the burning aircraft. Despite flash explosions, he was undaunted by the dangerous circumstances while fighting the fire. Throughout the hazardous rescue operations, he continued his courageous efforts until all of the casualties were removed from the blazing wreckage and the fire was under control. Specialist Pappageorge's heroic conduct, determination, and deep concern for his fellow man are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service. (This award supersedes the award of the Army Commendation Medal to Specialist Pappageorge for heroism on 24 June 1964 as announced in General Orders Number 73, Headquarters 11th Air Assault Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, dated 21 July 1964.)

First Lieutenant James D. Patton, , Transportation Corps, United States Army, as a member of the 516th Transport Airplane Company, 11th Air Assault Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, distinguished himself by heroism on 24 June 1964, near Ridgeway, South Carolina. When Lieutenant Patton saw an Army aircraft crash during a night field exercise, he immediately proceeded to the scene of the accident to participate in the rescue effort. Upon arrival at the crash site, he displayed complete disregard for his own safety, ignored the intense heat from the fuel fed blaze, and unhesitatingly began to evacuate the injured personnel from the burning aircraft. Although he was knocked from the wreckage by the force of a flash explosion, he was undaunted by the momentary set back, returned to the flaming aircraft, assisted in extricating an injured man who was pinned under an engine, and then administered first aid to him. Throughout the hazardous rescue operation, he continued his courageous efforts until all of the casualties were removed from the blazing wreckage and the fire was under control. Lieutenant Patton's heroic conduct, determination, and deep concern for his fellow man are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service. (This award supersedes the award of the Army Commendation Medal to Lieutenant Patton for heroism 24 June 1964 as announced in General Orders Number 73, Headquarters 11th Air Assault Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, dated 21 July 1964.)

Sergeant Peter Rosie, , Armor (then Specialist Five), United States Army, as a member of Company A, 1st Battalion, 33d Armor, United States Forces, distinguished himself by heroism in Germany, on 12 January 1964. When Specialist Rosie observed an M113 personnel carrier crash through a gate of the installation, he and a driver of a jeep immediately participated in a chase to recover the vehicle and apprehend the driver. As he overtook the carrier in a populated area and ordered the berserk driver to halt, the driver responded by swerving the carrier and crashing it into the jeep, inflicting severe lacerations on Specialist Rosie's right leg and fracturing his left one. The delay caused by Specialist Rosie's courageous efforts resulted in the capture of the driver a few kilometers beyond the town and the recovery of the carrier. Through his prompt action and complete disregard for his own personal safety in this emergency situation, Specialist Rosie averted further damage to government property and the possible loss of life to the people of the local community. His heroic conduct is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Specialist Five James P. Smitherman, , (then Specialist Four), United States Army, as a member of Headquarters Company, United States Army Signal Group, Ryukyu Islands, distinguished himself by heroism on 11 April 1963 at Kiyuna Ginowan City, Okinawa. Upon hearing the distant crying of a child, Specialist Smitherman investigated and found that the cries were coming from the pit of a very deep abandoned well near his quarters. By the time he located the source of the crying, a mixed group of Ryukyuan and American persons had also gathered at the scene where a young girl had accidentally plunged to the bottom of the 125-foot shaft. After organizing those few people who were willing to assist in the rescue operation, Specialist Smitherman decided it was necessary to descend into the well to rescue the little girl. With complete disregard for his own safety and ignoring warnings of possible cave-in and exposure to highly dangerous gases, he bravely descended by rope to the bottom of the well to reach the child. Then, with the assistance of another American soldier and a local civilian, he succeeded in bringing the girl to the top of the well. Specialist Smitherman's fortitude, heroic conduct, and courageous efforts to save a human life are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Staff Sergeant Heywood R. Thompson, Jr., , United States Army, as a member of Company B, Faculty Group (Tactics), distinguished himself by heroism on 13 July 1964 at Fort Polk, Louisiana. Sergeant Thompson was performing his duties as an Assistant Instructor in the throwing of live fragmentation grenades on the Hand Grenade Range when one of the trainees released the safety lever of a grenade and then froze when ordered to throw it. With complete disregard for his own safety, Sergeant Thompson swiftly seized the activated grenade from the trainee's hand, hurled it into the throwing bay, and pulled the trainee behind the bay's safety wall seconds before the grenade exploded in the impact area. Through his courage and spontaneous reaction to a dangerous situation, he averted possible injury and loss of life to the personnel in the area. Sergeant Thompson's prompt and heroic action in this emergency is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects distinct credit upon himself and the military service. (This award supersedes the award of the Army Commendation Medal to Sergeant Thompson for heroism on 13 July 1964 as announced in General Orders Number 254, Headquarters Fort Polk, Fort Polk, Louisiana, dated 8 October 1964).

Major Kenneth R. Tiger, , Corps of Engineers, as a member of the Supply and Maintenance Agency, United States Army Communications Zone, Europe, distinguished himself by heroism in the vicinity of Verdun, France, on 18 December 1964. Major Tiger and two other Army soldiers were on the scene when a fire broke out in a trailer which was the home of a military family. Upon learning that a 15-month old child was inside the blazing trailer, Major Tiger and his fellow soldiers broke down a locked door to rescue the baby. With complete disregard for his own safety, he entered the flaming structure and participated in evacuating the child to a place of safety. Major Tiger's prompt action and heroic conduct in this emergency are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Private Milton J. Ward, , United States Army, as a member of Company A, 7th Battalion, 2d Training Brigade, United States Army Training Center, Armor, Fort Knox, Kentucky, distinguished himself by heroism on 1 November 1964, in Louisville, Kentucky. Private Ward unhesitatingly participated in a hazardous rescue mission when he and two military companions observed an apartment house on fire. With complete disregard for his own safety, he repeatedly entered the blazing structure, ran from floor to floor through dense smoke, and succeeded in evacuating trapped persons from the burning apartment before the fire department arrived on the scene. He and his fellow soldiers evacuated a woman who was completely disabled, an elderly gentleman unable to walk, and another man who was unable to reach safety without assistance. By his prompt action and courageous efforts, he participated in an evacuation mission that prevented the possible loss of life. Private Ward's heroic conduct is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Major Lawrence H. D. Williams, , Artillery, United States Army, as a member of the United States Army Element, Allied Land Forces, Southeastern Europe, distinguished himself by heroism in Izmir, Turkey, on 25 November 1964. As a member of a Scuba Club, Major Williams unhesitatingly volunteered to participate in an effort to locate an Army Sergeant and two Turkish nationals who were in a taxicab that had skidded off a pier and plunged into the extremely deep waters of Izmir Bay. Major Williams displayed complete disregard for his own safety in his efforts to locate the missing men by diving into the murky, turbulent waters of the Bay which was littered with debris. After the two Turkish nationals were found, he continued his efforts to recover the body of the missing soldier from the Bay despite the hazardous circumstances. Major Williams' heroic conduct and humanitarian efforts are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Specialist Four George W. Wilson, , United States Army, as a member of the 13th United States Army Security Agency Operations Company, distinguished himself by heroism on 30 May 1964, in the vicinity of Yorkshire, England. Specialist Wilson was walking along the bank of the River Nidd when he heard the screams of children and saw a boy sink beneath the deep water. Without knowledge of the currents or possible hazards in the water, Specialist Wilson completely ignored his own safety, dove into the river, and succeeded in locating the submerged youth. After towing the boy to the bank of the river, he efficiently administered the necessary first aid to restore the 6-year-old child's breathing to normal. Specialist Wilson's prompt and heroic action in this emergency is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Sergeant First Class William H. Wilson, Jr., United States Army, as a member of the 36th Ordnance Detachment (Explosive Disposal), distinguished himself by heroism on 8 June 1964, at Corozal, Canal Zone. Upon hearing an explosion in the unit workshop where a fellow soldier had been examining a home-made bomb, Sergeant Wilson grabbed a first-aid kit and rushed to the scene. With complete disregard for his own safety and ignoring a possibility of a second explosion and toxic gases, he worked his way through dense smoke and discovered that his fellow soldier was critically wounded. Then, with the assistance of another rescue volunteer, he rapidly and efficiently administered first aid to the injured man. When the seriousness of the wounded man's condition precluded removing him from the spot, Sergeant Wilson remained with him in the hazardous environment, aiding him physically and spiritually until an ambulance arrived. Sergeant Wilson's heroic conduct and deep concern for the welfare of a fellow soldier are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Specialist Four Walter B. Wroten, United States Army, as a member of the 26th Transportation Company, United States Forces, distinguished himself by heroism in the vicinity of Verdun, France, on 18 December 1964. Specialist Wroten and two other Army soldiers were on the scene when a fire broke out in a trailer which was the home of a military family. Upon learning that a 15-month-old child was inside the blazing trailer. Specialist Wroten and his fellow soldiers broke down a locked door to rescue the baby. With complete disregard for his own safety, he entered the flaming structure and participated in evacuating the child to a place of safety. Specialist Wroten's prompt action and heroic conduct in this emergency are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

XI. BRONZE STAR MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 11046, 24 August 1962, the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for heroic achievement in connection with military operations against hostile forces is awarded, posthumously, to Staff Sergeant Wayne E. Marchand, United States Army, distinguished himself by heroic achievement while engaged in military operations against an opposing armed force in Vietnam on 7 April and 8 April 1962. As an Advisor, Sergeant Marchand was accompanying an element of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam on a surveillance mission when a strong Viet Cong force launched a violent attack against the perimeter of defense that had been established for the night. Although Sergeant Marchand was wounded during the initial onslaught, he ignored his own wounds, efficiently called for helicopter support, rallied the Vietnamese troops, and encouraged them to pursue their defense effort. With complete disregard for his own safety, he exposed himself to the intense enemy gun fire and retaliated with effectiveness until all ammunition was expended. When he and the Vietnamese unit were taken prisoners, he displayed fortitude, determination, and bravery by engaging in military tactics that slowed down the hostile activities, and continued his efforts until he lost his life at the hands of the enemy. Throughout the long and grueling ordeal, he inspired the Vietnamese troops by his indomitable courage, perseverance, and devotion to duty. Sergeant Marchand's heroic conduct is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

XII--BRONZE STAR MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 11046, 24 August 1962, a Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for heroic achievement in connection with military operations against hostile forces is awarded to:

Staff Sergeant John Baran, , United States Marine Corps, distinguished himself by heroic achievement while serving as a Light Weapons Infantry Advisor to a Company of the Armed Forces of the Republic of Vietnam, and engaged in military operations against an opposing armed force on 12 December 1964, in Vietnam. Sergeant Baran was accompanying the friendly element in an attack on an emplaced Viet Cong company when the pilot of the first of two supporting aircraft erroneously made a strafing run over the friendly forces, causing two casualties. As the second aircraft began its strafing run, Sergeant Baran completely disregarded his own safety, bravely ran through the gun fire, obtained a smoke grenade, and succeeded in detonating it in time to signal the pilot of the second aircraft to cease fire. Through his fortitude, determination, and courageous action, he prevented many more casualties among his fellow soldiers. Sergeant Baran's heroic conduct is in the highest traditions of the military service and reflects distinct credit upon himself and the United States Marine Corps.
